

RIGHTS AT WORK - KS2

What's in the picture on the front of this card?

What do you see?

What do you think is happening?

How does it make you feel?

When you start work you will have rights and responsibilities. You will need to work hard, treat other people well and do the best job that you can.

What rights should you expect at work?

Which rights do you think are most important?

Do you think there are any rights missing?

Add your own ideas to the blank boxes.

To work a reasonable amount of hours each week and be given extra pay if you work overtime.

To work in safe and healthy conditions.

To earn enough money for food, shelter and transport, with some left over for other things – a living wage.

People at work can join together in trade unions. As members of a trade union, workers have more power to negotiate better pay and working conditions with their employers than they do as individuals.
